John Jay College of Criminal Justice

John Jay is a unique type of institution. It is the only four year college in the United States committed to the field of Criminal Justice in its entirety.

By action of the Board of Higher Education in December, 1954, a program of cooperation with the New York City Police Department was undertaken for the more effective education of the police force. The initial step in the joint educational program was the establishment of a curriculum in Police Science leading to the Associate in Applied Science degree which had been registered by the State Education Department. Course work in the A.A.S. program began in September, 1955. A Specialization in Police Science in the curriculum leading to the Bachelor of Business Administration degree was approved in 1957 and the first matriculated students were admitted to the program in September 1957.

In June of 1964, the Board of Higher Education established the College of Police Science as a senior college in the City University of New York. The College opened in September 1965 and absorbed the undergraduate program in Police Science which had been offered at the Baruch School. In 1966, the name was changed to John Jay College of Criminal Justice to more accurately reflect its concern with the whole field of criminal justice. It was at this time that civilian students were admitted in order to widen the scope of the College.

The education program of the College has as its objectives the broad education of law enforcement officers, professional training for police and other services in the process of criminal justice, development of necessary goals of leadership, and the fostering of professional achievement in public service.

Extra-curricular activities and participation on college committees alongside members of the faculty and administration give students a chance to be instrumental in the molding of the present and future of the school.

John Jay has become a forum in which police and civilian students exchange ideas and work together for the betterment of themselves, their school, and their community.

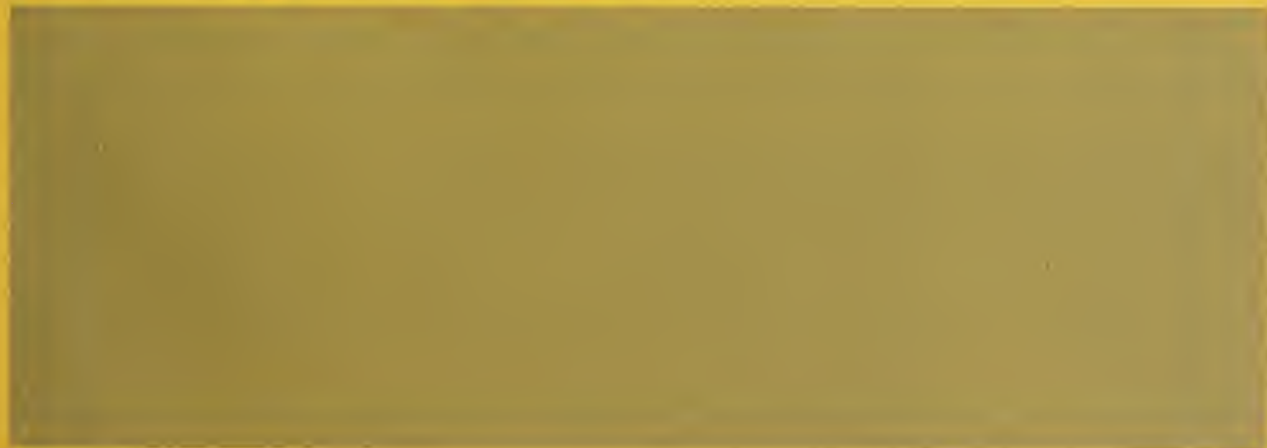

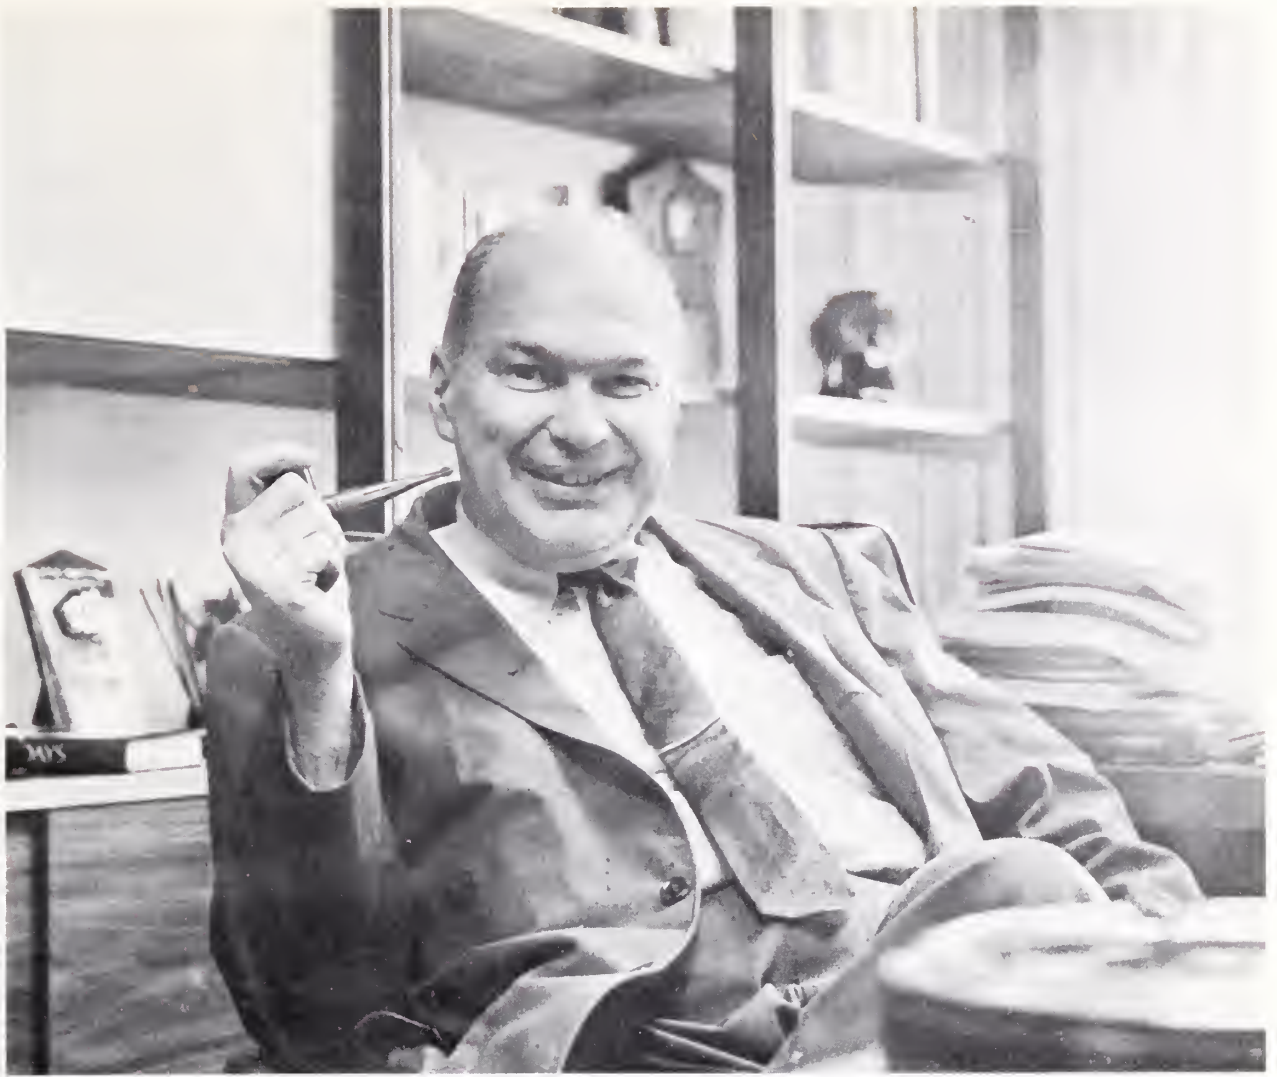

MISS JOHN JAY

"I wish to extend my personal congratulations to each recipient of a degree from John Jay College in 1969. I know full well the long years of sacrifice on the parts of students and their families that is required for the successful completion of any course of study at this College. But, all our graduates—and their families—can derive satisfaction from the achievements of personal development and contributions to the professionalization of law enforcement which the diploma represents.

"I should also like to congratulate the editors of the yearbook, which seems to get better every year. It represents an important contribution to the building of a sense of community at the College. I sincerely hope that it will be one means of maintaining each graduate's continued association and identification with the College.

"I extend to each of you, again, my congratulations and my very best wishes for continued success in your every endeavor."

President Donald H. Riddle

"Commencement time marks the successful achievement of a goal and, hopefully, the commencement of a pursuit of newer, higher goals. Your opportunities are without parallel. Never has there been a greater insistence by society that its law enforcement officials have a higher education. If ever a graduating class has been at the right place at the right time, it's you. Congratulations and good luck!"

Claude E. Hawley
Dean of the College

"Every year, sometime in June, we at John Jay suddenly realize that ours is an extraordinary college. We do not have to lecture our graduates on the need to buckle their belts and earn a living, or on the importance of distinguishing the academic life from the real world. Our graduates have been earning both a living and a degree for some time.

"Like all other colleges in this difficult year, John Jay has its problems. Still, I believe there is a mutual respect of faculty and students which is quite unique in the present situation. We on the faculty—if I may presume to speak for my colleagues—have learned that mature men and women can study very effectively while working in very demanding jobs. You who are graduating have, I hope, learned that John Jay is a first-rate college with an accomplished and sympathetic faculty.

"We are proud of you for achieving your success under difficult circumstances. We wish you well and hope you remember us fondly."

John Cammett
Dean of Faculty

"Graduation from John Jay is a personal and collegial triumph. It exonerates the trust and dedication of so many men and women to the prime importance of a full liberal arts education combined with expertise in specific areas of the field of criminal justice. The men and women who conceived of the college, who brought it into being and nurtured its unique growth with resolve and foresight and the men and women who graduate this year can exult in the increasing fruition of John Jay College and its mission.

"Since it is the only four year senior college in the land, founded and committed to the field of criminal justice in its entirety, the graduates are uniquely qualified to work and grow in this field which is so germane to our nation's current dilemmas and crises.

"I wish you congratulations and every success upon your graduation from John Jay. I also wish that as graduates, your world-view would be based on a larger canvas, a fuller empathy and a daring resolve to continuing growth and change, that it, too, continue to be educated."
